Taskbar Activate is a small software application whose purpose is to help you hide or show the Windows taskbar in order to gain more space on your screen. Portable running mode This is a portable program. You can keep it stored on USB flash drives or other portable devices and carry it with you all the time. Gaining access to the tool's features requires only opening the executable file because there's no installation included in the process. What's more, you can open it without administrative privileges on the target computer and uninstall it using a quick deletion task because it does not leave entries in your Windows registry.

Look for the utility in the system tray Taskbar Activate runs in the background without disturbing your work. It can be found sitting quietly in the system tray. You may open the configuration panel via the system tray. The taskbar is automatically hidden each time it loses focus. It comes in handy especially when running applications in full screen or dealing with ‘always on top’ windows. You can activate or deactivate the automatic hiding mode by simply clicking on the utility’s icon. A colorful line is displayed at the bottom of the screen when the taskbar is deactivated. If you hover your mouse cursor over it, the taskbar automatically becomes active. Configuration settings Taskbar Activate comes packed with several configuration parameters under the hood. They are not highly intuitive so you need to experiment a little bit with them in order to understand how the program works. You are allowed to set a delay time used for activating the taskbar in milliseconds, restart the delay time upon mouse movement,

highlight the taskbar when you hover your mouse over it and show a custom color, get back the bar in the background when it is no more in use, completely hide the bar in the background, as well as show icon in the taskbar. Final observations All things considered, Taskbar Activate comes packed with several handy options for helping you activate or deactivate the Windows taskbar. It is not a resource hog so you can keep it running in the background without worrying that it affects the overall performance of the computer. Sponsor: Visit site to find out

Why not learn a thing or two more about Windows? Taskbar Rotation is a simple Windows add-on for the advanced users that enables them to modify the behavior of Windows taskbar when rotated. When the program is started, you are able to configure how the taskbar behaves when it is rotated. This feature can be a bit tricky to grasp at first, but the author advises you to read the manual thoroughly in order to get the hang of it.

Taskbar Rotation has a friendly interface. The toolbar slides out from its default position when the taskbar is rotated. There are five configuration options: keep the toolbar in the middle of the screen (as it is, when the taskbar is not rotated), hide the toolbar, move the toolbar to the top-left corner, hide the toolbar (but show the buttons), move the toolbar to the bottom-right corner. You can also adjust the buttons on the taskbar from the basic design to the more functional ones that include a preview of the next most recently opened document, a preview of the most recently closed document, a preview of the last window you closed (click the command bar button to see other options) and a preview of the latest message you received (click the notification area button to view the list). You can further activate the “Always on top” feature for the taskbar buttons and set a shortcut key for the “Don’t show toolbars” option. You can easily change the color scheme of the taskbar buttons. There are also some useful tools for enabling you to hide and show the taskbar at any moment in your favorite toolbars.

PCMon is the simplest way for users to keep track of all of their hardware devices.

Having lost numerous memory cards over the years, I took the step to regularly back up my PC and all of its critical files. As it turned out, backing up the computer's hard drive was a daily occurrence – which, to my delight, made backing up my digital camera by itself even more frequent. This program had the power to do both at the same time! The setup for this software was simple. I simply installed it on my desktop PC, entered my backup password and it had everything automated. The time period in which all of the software would back up each and every device on my PC was originally set to save data every 90 minutes. I simply turned it up to every 24 hours. The program gave me the option to
